LOCAL BUILDING AUTHORITY of SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH MEETING

A. LBA OPENING CEREMONY:

1. Board/Council Member Darin Mano will conduct the formal meeting.
2. Pledge of Allegiance.
3. Welcome and Public Meeting Rules.

B. LBA PUBLIC HEARINGS:

1. Resolution: Budget for the Local Building Authority for Fiscal Year 2024-25

The Board will accept public comment and consider approving a resolution that would adopt the final budget for the Capital Projects Fund of the Local Building Authority of Salt Lake City, Utah for Fiscal Year 2024-25.

The LBA's Capital Projects Fund for Fiscal Year 2024-25 only includes the bond debt services for the Glendale and Marmalade Libraries. (Other Capital projects throughout the City are included in the Mayor's Recommended Budget; see the Capital Improvement Program Budget Book.) The LBA is a financing tool for cities and government entities, like libraries, to bond for capital projects at better interest rates. Capital projects are big construction projects like parks, public buildings, and street projects.

Nick Tarbet introduced the item.

Mike Maughan (Smith Entertainment Group) spoke on the proposed development and their plan with Abravanel Hall to maintain its public benefit while connecting all sides of downtown to create a cohesive community.

Council Member Wharton reminded the public that the development was moving quickly due to the time frame set by the Legislature to create the district.

Bim Oliver spoke against the revitalization zone's flawed plan and lucrative return promises and suggested the Council set aside money from the district to fund the renovation of Abravanel Hall to maintain it in the community.

Meg Averett urged the Council to spend the funds on renovating the current Abravanel Hall instead of demolishing it for a hockey stadium.

Levy Woodruff spoke of the need to create more affordable housing to ensure that citizens who pay taxes on this revitalization zone could afford to live there and to require more minimum affordable housing units within the development.

Ryeleigh Hewlett spoke against the revitalization zone, stating the need to keep affordable housing available for residents.

Traci O'Very Covey supported the revitalization zone and spoke on the need to fund the rebuilding of the Utah Museum of Contemporary Art (UMOCA), keeping that vital part of the community active.

En Canada spoke against the revitalization plan and stated concern that the money earned from the district would only go to developers.

Nathan Phillips supported the revitalization zone, addressing positive results for both private and public sectors.

Dee Brewer supported the revitalization zone and the downtown growth it would support in Salt Lake City's future.

Laura Allred Hurtado spoke in support of the revitalization zone that would rebuild UMOCA and support the arts.

RJ Walker spoke on creating more free and affordable crafting spaces for local artists when creating the revitalization zone to ensure a venue to continue their projects.

Rick Seven (owner of Squatters Brewery) supported the revitalization zone and detailed its impact on their business and the ability to support their employees.

Carolyn Abravanel voiced opposition to the destruction of Abravanel Hall and the need to protect the historic building when creating the revitalization zone.

Frank McEntire supported the financial bill to renovate UMOCA and keep the arts alive in the City.

Richard Walje (President of the UMOCA Board) supported the revitalization zone and expressed excitement for the future of art within the new development.

Dan Hayes (General Manager for Salt Palace Convention Center) supported the creation of the revitalization zone and requested that the benefits of including the Salt Palace in the redevelopment plans and not mislabeling the location as a divider be reviewed.

Samuel Adams asked the Council to review the plan to mitigate displacement risk by establishing an affordable housing stock in the plan and implementing long-term homes for small businesses around the Delta Center.

Karen Platis urged the Council and Mayor to find a way to implement the sports district while keeping the music hall and arts alive within the City and expressed dismay towards massive screens lining the streets around the new zone.

Patricia Kingston spoke on the need to preserve Abravanel Hall and its historic monument within Salt Lake City.

Lisa Imamura spoke about Japantown and other cultures neighboring the revitalization zone, which wanted to be included in the discussion and its creation.

Everen Brown requested more public information on the plan and a clearer map to understand better the proposed arena's actual footprint and public space.

Kaitlin Eskelson (President & CEO of Visit Salt Lake) supported the creation of the revitalization zone and reminded the Council to support and not displace small local businesses when rethinking the convention center.

Garrett Parker (Hotel General Manager and Board Chair of Visit Salt Lake) supported the revitalization zone and asked the Council to ensure convention business and functioning of the convention center during the expansion.

Julie Easton Gregerson opposed the added sales tax for a project that did not fully address the citizens' concerns.

Sabrina Nelson spoke about the great acoustic sound of Abravanel Hall and the irreplaceable creation that would be lost with its rebuilding and demonstrated the effects of acoustics with a short opera performance.

Damon Talbot supported the plan and stated the Council should include the community in the initial stages of discussion and the short timeline.

Annette Jarvis (Utah Symphony and UMOCA Board Member) requested that arts be at the forefront of the development to allow collaboration with the entertainment focus.

Sheldon Marumoto spoke on Japantown and urged the Council to fund its revitalization project and ensure the sports district development's focus included preserving the remaining history.

Tom Merrill (Chair of Downtown Community Council) stated that public funds should prioritize public benefits, Salt Lake needed a backup plan if private funding failed, and strong support existed for restoring Japantown.

Monica Hilding spoke against the revitalization zone and asked the Council to revisit the Rio Grande Plan as an alternative to this district.

David Scheer discussed Abravanel Hall's unique design and the need to keep it due to its inability to recreate the architecture.

James Allen spoke against the revitalization zone and reminded the Council to listen to their constituents when voting on this item.

Mike Nielsen (UMOCA Board Member) supported the item and the remodeling of the museum, creating a better home for the arts.

JC Hamilton supported the revitalization zone and asked the Council to consider some community investment in the creation.

Floyd Morian urged the Council to enhance Japantown while creating this revitalization zone and to include the local communities.

Alex Hirai spoke against the revitalization zone, stating that it was a rushed process and that using taxpayer dollars to fund the project was unacceptable.

Clarysa Park represented the petition to revitalize Japantown, read the petition, and brought the physical signatures gathered around the valley supporting the project.

Matthew Givens spoke generally in favor of the plan, with the expectation that all community members, developers, and investors would have a say in the project.

John Little spoke on requiring taxpayer profits to be reinvested back into the community instead of private investors and treating all citizens and entities as project stakeholders.

Kate Little stated the need to slow down on the development and ensure the plan has been thoroughly reviewed before approving a tax increase for the revitalization zone.

MINUTES OF THE SALT LAKE CITY COUNCIL, LOCAL BUILDING AUTHORITY
AND REDEVELOPMENT AGENCY

Tuesday, May 21, 2024

Libby Haslam urged the Council to preserve Abravanel Hall, leave it out of the plans, and focus on rebuilding UMOCA instead.

Trey Imamura expressed excitement about creating the new zone and asked the Council to keep the Japanese–American community involved in the conversation and updated on all steps.

Natalie Brooks spoke on the privatization of the proposed plan aimed strictly at developers' profits and asked the Council to slow down and review the plan more before adopting it and promoting public transportation over building parking lots.

Marisa Eng spoke about the Buddhist Temple and its community benefits and urged the Council to invite community members and groups as key stakeholders into the planning conversations.

Denise Taylor Sivo spoke against the revitalization zone and expressed concern about massive screens and lights disrupting the community.

Troy Justensen spoke about the Hunting Expo, held annually at the Salt Palace, and expressed concern regarding the proposed limitation of exhibit space, which would negatively impact it and other expos.

Jim Webster spoke about the special architecture of Abravanel Hall and requested the Council spread the sales tax revenue to the County, where it would be used to upgrade the music hall and avoid the blight issue that would occur once the sports teams leave Utah.

Kseniya Kniazeva (Executive Director of Nomad Alliance) opposed the revitalization zone and asked the Council to address the people's basic needs before focusing on and pushing national sports in favor over the arts.

Donna Johnson spoke in support of maintaining Abravanel Hall and finding a way for sports and the arts to coexist in Salt Lake City.

Zenos Thoreson spoke in support of the revitalization zone, expressed excitement about more transportation options around the City, and asked the Council to include neighboring residents in the planning.

Rolen Yoshinaga (Salt Lake Buddhist Temple Board Member) asked the Council to review the plan for long-term community benefits, including culture, instead of merely monetary gain.

Rocky Anderson opposed the revitalization zone and urged the Council to prioritize community values and goals over Smith Entertainment's development.

Stephanie Burdick spoke against the sports entertainment team and requested the

AND REDEVELOPMENT AGENCY

Tuesday, May 21, 2024

Council have more community input in the plan to ensure the developer would not take away the City's power.

Drew Fallon urged a revision to the plan before it was adopted, removing the unfeasible rebuild of Abravanel Hall (preserving its history) and revisiting the Rio Grande Plan instead.

Daniel Cheung urged the Council to support the Japantown revitalization plan and requested their community be involved in every step.

Ed Roberson stated that the Council needed to approach this decision carefully and be informed to ensure the cohesiveness between culture, sports, and the arts.

Justin Roberson supported the zone and stated the need to keep culture alive while creating a new development.

Gopi Vijaya opposed the new zone and expressed concern that citizens had to pay for this sports arena while the developer received all the benefits.

Virginia Pearce (UMOCA Board Member) supported the Council and urged them to invite local artists and musicians to the discussions to ensure all voices and possibilities were heard.

Nathan Carlin spoke about public safety and suggested a tighter integration with transportation to create safer public transit and remove car lanes and parking structures from the plan.

Jani Iwamoto spoke on the history of the Japanese Church and the growing number of members, religions, and cultures that used the church.

Austin Abigt spoke against the tear down of Abravanel Hall and expressed dismay at the support of business interests over community needs.

Jeff Novak spoke against the proposed increase in sales tax and reminded the Council how this would create taxation without representation for most of the citizens that the tax would fall on.

Billy Magdiella spoke against the revitalization zone and stated the history of governments creating mass sports arenas to distract the citizens from the decaying morality of their empire.

Brooke Smith supported the zone but requested a compromise not to force out the current cultures and churches or box them in with massive buildings.

Motion:

The Council will set the date of Tuesday, June 4, 2024 at 7 p.m. to accept public comment and consider adopting an ordinance that would amend various sections of Title 21A of the Salt Lake City Code pertaining to the membership and term length of zoning decision-making bodies. The proposal is intended to reduce the minimum required number of commissioners for both the Planning Commission and Historic Landmark Commission so that if there is a sudden exit of commissioners, both land use authorities would be able to conduct City business. The proposal would also remove the language stating that the appeals hearing officer can serve no more than two consecutive five-year terms. This amendment will affect Chapter 21A.06 Decision Making Bodies and Officials.
