- Mayor Overson mentioned some incidents of disrespect and vandalism at the new parks. She encouraged community pride in these new spaces, noting that security cameras had been installed.
- Addressing concerns about watering at Summit Park, the mayor explained that new parks required extra watering initially. She assured everyone that city staff were working on fine-tuning the watering system between grass, park strips, and water-wise areas.
- The mayor thanked Dina Blaes for leading a ribbon-cutting ceremony for Fingerprinting Utah, an established Taylorsville business now in a new location. She emphasized the city's partnership with Chamber West in welcoming and celebrating local businesses.
- Mayor Overson discussed the Waterways yard makeover, expressing excitement about the project's completion. Homeowners Leslie and Greg were pleased with the finished project, which was designed to be maintainable and to improve their front yard's appearance.
- The mayor reported on the July 1st transfer of control of Bangerter Highway to Utah Highway Patrol. This change would allow Taylorsville officers to focus more on city streets and neighborhoods. She noted that UHP had already been proactive in enforcement.

3.     REPORTS

3.1     Green Committee Report – *Mark Wendel

Green Committee Chair Mark Wendel reported on the committee's more recent activities:

- The committee hosted two events in spring (March 27th and April 24th) in support of the Jordan Valley Water Conservancy's Localscapes program.
- Mr. Wendel noted that a Taylorsville yard was chosen for a makeover, partly due to the committee's support and interest in the program.
- A committee member was focused on reducing recyclables in the waste stream at Vista Park, and Mr. Wendel reported that progress was ongoing.

- Taylorsville's annual cleanup event was held on May 17th. The event saw some changes including the discontinuation of household hazardous waste and electronic waste disposal as both were available elsewhere. Mr. Wendel provided statistics on various types of waste collected, noting increases in bulk waste and other recyclables. He highlighted the participation of the Other Side Boutique for collecting donations. He thanked various individuals and organizations for their support at the event, including the city council, administration, Council member Burgess, the Taylorsville High football team, Coach Rosie, Taylorsville High's principal, Texas Roadhouse, and Redwood Recycling.

3.2 Senior Center Report – *Olivia Snyder

Salt Lake County's Olivia Snyder introduced herself and explained that she was filling in at Taylorsville's Senior Center and was currently the manager at the Sunday Anderson Senior Center in downtown Salt Lake City. She presented a report on the center's activities and use, explaining there had been a very slight decrease in daily attendance during Q2 of the current year compared to Q1.

There had also been a decrease in meals served, partly attributed to the discontinuation of to-go meals at the end of Q1 last year. However, the center did still allow seniors to bring their own containers to take leftovers home.

Ms. Snyder mentioned that the center had been without a program coordinator for about a year, which affected some programming. Recent help from coordinators from other centers had allowed for more variety in programs. Despite the slight decrease in overall attendance, recreation activities saw an increase in Q2.

Ms. Snyder noted positive feedback from seniors about the new Taylorsville Park, mentioning increased activity and life in the area. She also explained that two of the county's senior centers would be closing—Sunday Anderson and the Tenth East Center. The latter was expected to open again in 12-18 months after a remodel.

7. OTHER MATTERS

7.1 Presentation from Jordan Valley Water Conservancy District Regarding Proposed Property Tax Increase – *Jacob Young

City Administrator John Taylor introduced JVWCD Deputy General Manager Jacob Young who presented information regarding a proposed district-wide tax increase. He explained that it was needed to fund critical infrastructure, address growth throughout the service area, and meet operational and maintenance needs.

The agency's total budgeted annual revenue for the year was just over $111 million, with 30% of that coming from taxes. An 11.1% increase was proposed which would generate an additional $3.1 million in revenue. For a home valued at $630,000, the increase would amount to less than $12 per year.

Mr. Young outlined several major projects, including treatment plant upgrades, and water storage reservoirs. He concluded his remarks by announcing a Truth in Taxation public hearing which was to take place at 6pm on August 11 at the JVWCD office.

Council members asked questions about the location of new water storage reservoirs and the specifics of the treatment plant upgrades.

Jay Ziolkowski presented information regarding the update of Salt Lake County's Emergency Multi-Jurisdictional Hazard Mitigation plan. The plan was an update to the 2019 version and would typically be updated every 5-6 years in conjunction with the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

The plan aimed to address hazardous events, mitigation efforts, and reclamation processes at local, state, and national levels. It involved coordination between all municipalities within Salt Lake County in order to ensure comprehensive life safety and property conservation measures.

The proposed resolution included a clause allowing minor editing without requiring the council's re-approval of the document. Mr. Ziolkowski explained that it would be used in conjunction with city engineering, planning, and zoning efforts to mitigate and help with reclamation for potential hazardous events.
