24 WEBSITE PREVIEW

26 Bryce King, Administrative Services Director, previewed the city's redesigned website, 27 noting the city has moved to a new platform, GovStack (GHD), which is also used by other cities 28 such as Draper. He explained the site shown was a basic framework while content migration is 29 still underway by staff across departments. The proposed homepage features five main 30 categories - Living Here, Recreation and Culture, Emergencies and Public Safety, Business and 31 Development, and Your Government - based on analytics of the most-visited pages on the current 32 site. Council members emphasized making a "Contact Us" option more prominent, questioned
33 whether "Living Here" was too vague, and generally supported new features including a chatbot,
34 improved ADA accessibility, integrated social media and meeting videos, resident subscriptions 35 for alerts, and geo-targeted communications. City Manager Brant Hanson said the new site would 36 significantly improve usability and reduce ongoing costs. The current website expires February 37 19, with a target launch of February 1, 2026.
