Reason for change and effects: 1. Bring VULU into compliance with Utah State Law 10-9a-530. (2)-b-(i); 2. Changing language from Casita to Accessory Dwelling Units 3. Removing sizing restrictions from Internal Accessory Dwelling Units These changes will bring VULU into compliance with Utah State Code. The changes will add definitions to chapter 2 of VULU. The changes will also increase the size of Internal Accessory Dwelling Units from no greater than 50% primary building to no size restriction.
Current: 16.22 F. CASITA/GUEST HOUSE. ¹ 1. Casitas are not intended to be designed or used as independent family dwellings. 2. Casita Standards. The following standards shall apply to all casitas: a. No more than one (1) casita is permitted on a lot; b. Wastewater treatment system serving the property must be sized within the guidelines of the health authority to effectively serve additional bedroom and fixtures. c. Adequate additional off-street parking shall be provided. d. Casitas must be served by the same electrical, water, and gas meters that serve the main single-family dwelling unit. e. Attached Casita. If the casita is attached to the primary dwelling unit or to a garage the following requirements must be met: i. Must be of compatible architectural style, including siding and roofing, and shall be made structurally a part of the primary building; and ii. Must not be more than fifty percent (50%) of primary dwelling's total area. f. Detached Casita. If the casita is detached the following requirements must be met: i. Must not exceed the height of the primary structure; ii. Must be within the setbacks of the zone; iii. Must be located at least ten feet (10') from any building existing or under construction on the same lot or any adjacent lot; iv. Must not be more than fifty percent (50%) of the primary dwelling's total area; and 3. The owner may not sell a utility-dependent casita dwelling unit. 4. The Town of Virgin may require an inspection of a casita to ensure compliance with these standards, in response to a written complaint, subject to twenty-four (24) hour notice to owner. Chapter 2 Residential Hosting. The act of renting a portion of a residential dwelling unit or casita on a temporary basis for any period less than thirty (30) consecutive days, where a permanent resident or the Owner resides.
