Mellisa,

I heard there may be an opening on the Planning and Zoning board.. If that is true I would like to be considered for the appointment. I have in-depth knowledge of the city codes and feel I would be a strong addition to there board..

Thanks Jeremy Hoggard

I talked with a staff member in the County Recorder's office about what the county requires to record a subdivision and how they indicate the document is accepted for recording and the fee paid. For city purposes the key to proving a subdivider recorded a plat is in the county stamp on the original document. They don't stamp it as recorded until the document has been examined for all needed info and the subdivider has paid the fee. So we can require a copy of the recorded doc with stamp and that is our proof the subdivision has been recorded.
