BUSINESS ITEM(S)

1. Murray Armory Update

The suggestion of the gazebo shade area not being round but rather a more rectangular stage area has been implemented. We are very close to having the design done with a cost estimate of around 5 million with 5.5 million budgeted for the Armory. The plan would be to submit plans to the building division as soon as they are done and then we will be ready to bid on the building sometime around May if approved by the city council.

2. Theater Update

The new completion date for the theater is February 2024. Change orders already have occurred including a GL technical study with water being found 10 feet under the ground, which was higher than expected, seismic upgrades for the walls, and some decorative architecture inside to be maintained and saved. The Fire Marshall requested upgrades to the fire system as well. These changes have already been approved through the city process. Other change orders that are coming will be to put a coating within the foundation wall to help protect and divert water and staggered seating to help with the site lines, which will add about an additional twenty seats.

3. Impact Fee Update

These fees were adopted about a year ago and we now have about 1.2 million with just over a year of collection. Kim has been working with the legal department to clarify what these funds can be used towards. These funds can be used for anything that increases participation in three areas for recreation to include, including facilities, parkland, and trails. Our legal team suggested that we look at modifying our impact fee study so that it includes a section in the plan explaining where these funds can be used. Kim asked the board to consider any list items that these funds could be used for.

DIRECTOR'S REPORT(S)

We have had two staff members retire since we met last month. Ron Larson, who was our field supervisor and with Murray City parks department for 39 years. We have rehired his position promoting Bo Shipley. David Carruth who is our golf course superintendent, and his last day is the 31st of this month. Dave's position has been posted with currently three applicants.
